Current Dental Schools

Almost all of the above dental colleges are now part of larger universities, as outlined in the following brief histories of the colleges.

The Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery was founded in 1856 in Philadelphia by the faculty of the short-lived Philadelphia College of Dental Surgery. It was the third-oldest dental school in the United States. In 1909, the College merged with the dental school of the University of Pennsylvania.

Originally founded as the Pittsburgh Dental College in April 1896, the School of Dental Medicine welcomed its first class of 119 freshmen that September. The school became a part of the University of Pittsburgh in 1909 and was renamed the School of Dentistry.

The School of Dentistry (Temple) was founded in 1863 as the Philadelphia Dental College. It is the second-oldest dental school in continuous operation in the United States. The School became affiliated with Temple University in 1907.

The Ohio College of Dental Surgery opened in 1845 in Cincinnati, Ohio, becoming the second private dental college in the world. The college affiliated itself with the University of Cincinnati in 1887, but closed in 1926.

Penn Dental Medicine is among the oldest university-affiliated dental institutions in the nation. It was created in 1878 as the Dental Department of the University of Pennsylvania.

The University of Maryland Dental School is the direct descendant of the world's first dental college, the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, which was chartered by an act of the Maryland General Assembly in 1840.

First Families of Western Pennsylvania

New Members — 2009

& Those Proving Additional Ancestors

The following WPGS members were inducted into First Families of Western Pennsylvania at our annual Spring Seminar on 11 April 2009. Members proving additional ancestors were also recognized at the same ceremony.

The deadline for completed applications for induction in 2010 is 30 November 2009. Members for 2009-10 membership year will be inducted at our annual spring seminar in April 2010. The exact date of the seminar will be announced in our Jots newsletter. For an application form, send an SASE to WPGS, c/o First Families, 4400 Forbes Avenue, Pittsburgh, PA 15213-4080 or check our website at wpgs.org.

Finding Answers in British Isles Census Records. By Echo King, AG. Published by Ancestry Publishing, 136 pp. Softbound. Index. $16.95

Ms. King graduated with a degree in Family History from Brigham Young University. Her specialty of English Research is well represented in this work. She not only explains the History of English, Welsh and Scottish Census taking but also the parishes and counties used and how the enumeration of those living aboard ships was done.

She gives us background on who collected the information, what was asked in each, and how the information was collected and compiled. Ms. King steers you through why some records are missing, why duplicate records occurred, the reasons for misleading information as well as how to transcribe the enumerators' handwriting.

Online and traditional sources of the census records are listed. Hints on how to use the records at the Family Records Centre, including Barrack & Military, HM Ships, workhouses, hospitals, asylums, prisons, reformatories, merchant vessels and schools, information is most helpful. Another important aspect is the lists of common abbreviations used and the listings of physical and mental conditions (i.e. blind, deaf, dumb) were noted beginning in the 1851 census. A separate chapter on the Census in Ireland is included. Also helpful is a glossary of terms, a listing of the addresses of Libraries and Archives, forms for using the Censuses and what returns are missing.

You Can Write Your Family History. By Sharon DeBartolo Carmack. Reprinted by Genealogical Publishing Co., 3600 Clipper Mill Rd., Suite 260, Baltimore, MD 21211-1953; 2008. (Originally published by Betterway Books, 2003.) ISBN 978-0-8063-1783-0. 245 pp. Softbound. Index, bibliography, appendices. $19.95.

Sharon Carmack loves to write, and this book encourages others to do the same. Like any professional genealogist, Carmack emphasizes source documentation and citation. She reminds us that in "creative non-fiction," as she calls the genre that is the book's subject, one must not fictionalize anything, whether dialogue, daily activities or motivation. The creativity comes in when a writer compiles an informative and engaging story.

Carmack starts with the planning stage of writing by describing and illustrating options in areas such as genre, themes and structure. It was illuminating to see a variety of chronological structures a family historian might use. The family history doesn't have to begin at point A and move in a straight line forward or backward to point B.

The book progresses to cover topics such as using social histories, including family stories, research organization, and character development. Concepts such as "Show, don't tell" or "Using sensory perception" are nicely demonstrated with real writing samples. Next come the use of illustrations, citations and front and end material. Pre-publication, copyright, publishing and marketing are covered briefly in the final chapters, with plenty of additional resources provided.

I was puzzled by Carmack's repeated use in examples of the phrase "no doubt" as a synonym for "probably" or "maybe" in qualifying information we are unsure about, since I use the phrase to mean "certainly." A quick check of several dictionaries showed that both usages are correct, with no consensus on the preferred definition. When the intent is to indicate uncertainty, it seems wise to avoid a term that the reader could justifiably construe with a different meaning.

Betterway, the original publisher, used a wide side-margin format including graphical icons which might be helpful to some readers and a distraction to others. This is a characteristic of the publisher and not the author. Rounded out by an index, extensive bibliography and appendices with sample writing styles, this book is an excellent guide and motivator for either the hesitant or the eager family history writer.
