W. B. Boyd -

Dear Sir - Charles informed me that you had some eight or nine hundred dollars that you were desirous of loaning - Having no use for the same at present

At present we would not want it unless you could let us have it until next Christmas - Then we could use the same all next crop of wheat and for other purposes that would repay us well -

We would be willing to allow you eight per cent per annum - If you see fit to let us have it you could deposit with D. P. Curtis & Co Bankers. Subject to your order - Then when we desired we could draw it -

We would give you the signature of E. A. McChaffey which you are aware I suppose includes the old gentleman's name - and responsibility - I write this for fear I cannot

See you in time as Charles informs me you start on Monday - If Georgia is better I will ~~be~~ ^{be} in on Tuesday - You truly

E. A. McChaffey & Co

I send our signature along in case you accept our proposal

Every thing must be put in all right E. A. McChaffey

Dear Auntie

Tonight finds me well with the exception of a cold. We have been having some lovely weather since I came back.

Last Friday morning it began to snow and snowed about two inches and made good sleighing until noon Saturday and it was gone.

Saturday morning we ~~we~~ run a rabbit under the culvert in the road so one of us held a sack at one end and the other poked him out with a pole.

Yesterday ~~was~~ was so warm and pleasant that one could ride with their coat unbuttoned, but about nine o'clock at night the wind came

Essay to be delivered at W. H. Jan 4-1850

Subject - Cider

Cider is a very pleasant beverage made of apples and has many good uses and many poor ones.

First comes apple picking which is done by shaking the apples off the trees and then gathering them.

The good ones are put in barrels and put in the cellar to use during the winter.

The rest which consists of the partly rotten and bruised ones are gathered up and put in a tub to take to the cider mill after that it is brought home in barrels and placed in the cellar where it generally has something put in it to keep it from getting soured quick but after while it gets soured and then it is used for drinking and making vinegar.

Cider is used for making apple-butler and jelly it is boiled down sometimes and put in jugs.
